

International Workshop | 13th October 2021

moderated by Balázs Németh,

DAAD Visiting Professor at University of Würzburg / ALE Professor at Uni Pécs /
Member of the International Adult and Continuing Education Hall of Fame

The Importance of Retrospective in Policy Analysis:

Revisiting the European Grundtvig Programme to discover its Roles and Impacts on Adult Learning and Education (2000-2013)

This workshop will explore the roles and impacts of the European Grundtvig Programme in the aspect of the quality development of adult learning and education across Europe. The programme became a flagship initiative to address the educational challenge of an ageing population and to provide adults with alternative pathways to update their skills and competences based on partnership-based actions amongst adult learners, teachers and trainers from a variety of organisations including local authorities, non-governmental organisations, charities, universities, community groups, etc.

In this regards, distinguished European experts and researchers of adult learning and education will reflect how this European initiative tried, on the one hand, to develop and innovate ALE with quality concerns, on the other, to collect and share examples of good practice by fostering collaborative actions amongst adult learners and adult educators.
